Panel from a Door Leaf

W: 34.7 cm; H: 88 cm

Inv. no. 431

This restored fragment of a door leaf exemplifies a Mamluk aesthetic, featuring a geometric composition of large six-pointed stars encircled by hexagons and irregular pentagons. Ivory was used both in the smaller inlays and the borders of the larger elements, all fitted using complex interlocking joinery, evidence of which remains visible on the panel's reverse. The carved semi-naturalistic vegetal scrolls and trilobed fleurons are offset by the panel's prevailing angular geometry.
