Panel

From the mosque of Aslam al-Silahdar

Bahri Mamluk, 745-46 AH / 1344-45 CE

W: 100 cm; H: 21 cm

Inv. no. 3102

Acquired from the mosque of Aslam al-Silahdar (745-46 AH / 1344-45 CE), this partially preserved panel features a narrow, edge-to-edge arrangement of bisected six-pointed stars and diamonds, a design characteristic of Mamluk decorative vocabulary. Small pieces of wood and ivory are further carved with delicate arabesques and vegetal scrolls, though much of the fine detail has been softened by the passage of time. The style and material of this panel closely correspond to other woodworked elements from the same site, suggesting they may have originated from a single workshop or craftsman. The narrow dimensions of the panel indicate it likely formed part of a window, book cabinet, chair, minbar base, or other modestly scaled object.
