Door Leaf

From the mosque of al-Azhar

Burji Mamluk, late 9th-early 10th centuries AH / late 15th-early 16th centuries CE

Wood, Ivory

W: 68 cm; H: 237 cm

Hall 4

Inv. no. 1617

Door leaf with a central panel ornamented with a joined geometric star pattern in carved wood and ivory. The slightly awkward fitting of the central panel within its surrounding frame indicates that it was likely reused in a new architectural context. The formal vocabulary and decorative treatment suggest a

Mamluk date; and while the panel was added to al-Azhar during one of the mosque's many restoration campaigns, it remains unclear whether it was originally made for the site and later refitted, or transferred from elsewhere before its incorporation.
